Butcher Shop, Restaurant and Carrot Theatre to be part of Remington

The owners of Woodberry Kitchen, one the city's most popular dining destinations, are planning to open a butcher shop and restaurant in Remington, according to a February 19th article in the Baltimore Sun.

The new businesses are part of the redevelopment of the old Mr. James Tire Shop at 26th and Howard, which was covered by the Remington Newsletter in its January 2013 issue. The restaurant/butcher shop will be accompanied by Single Carrot Theater and office space for Young Audiences, a nonprofit organization.

The project is being developed by Seawall Development Corporation, which also redeveloped Millers Court across the street. Spike Gjerde, the owner of Woodberry Kitchen, said of the project, "We love what's happening in Remington, and we're amped to hopefully be part of a growing community."

Seawall is also working on homes on Remington Avenue across from Anderson's. The large second floor windows are just one of the new visions to create interesting living space. They are part of Seawall's 30 by 13 initiative. The goal is to redefine and sell 30 houses in Remington by 2013. Seawall's vision is to reinvent the experience buyers have from both the outside and from the inside of the homes.

Beyond Facebook for Remington

Next door Remington was created as a place for neighbors to go online and chat about happenings in the neighborhood. It is not Facebook (where there are Friends of Remington and Remington History Club pages), but a much more private social media experience.

You can join by going to - https://remingtonmd.nextdoor.com/news_feed/ When you sign up they will need to 'verify' your residence and that can be done by them sending you a postcard with a code on it.

There are 54 Remington residents have already joined and we are enjoying conversations about things from history of Remington, crime in the neighborhood, residents comparing memories, information on local handymen, dentists and doctors. Stop in, read and share!

Remington Residents at the BMA

The faces of 12 Remington residents are on display at the Baltimore Museum of Art.

The exhibition, titled 12 portraits of Remington Residents was created by Baltimore street artist Gaia in 2012.

The exhibition is based on Paul Gauguin's painting, "Woman of the Mango" which is also shown at the BMA. Admission to the BMA is free and the exhibition will run until May 5th, 2013. Go take a new look at some old neighbors.

Community School Greenhouse

This years class of The Community School is initiating a long term project to establish a greenhouse to learn horticulture, grow food for the school, and sell plants to keep this project funded.

Several years ago they identified the need to improve the health of the students with nutritious foods. The students are at the school 10 hours a day and there is a hot meal each day. This is the next step in this process allowing the students to learn about growing food while supplying the school with fresh fruits and vegetables.

This project has been on the drawing board for several years. A deck has been built on the back of the building to locate the greenhouse. Everything has been done with volunteers and donated materials.

A greenhouse has just been ordered - a Riga Ills that is suited to year round growing. Donations are still needed to complete this, and it's a wonderful project for the Community School and for Remington.

Get your Maryland I.D. Card

This is needed for many official documents, such as the MTA bus pass, food pantry, social security and others. If you have lost yours, let us help!

If you are having trouble getting a Maryland State ID, (maybe you need to get a birth certificate first?) don't despair, The Church of the Guardian Angel and Episcopal Housing Corporation can help!

We can walk you through the process, help you fill out paperwork, and provide you with transportation to the MVA. Also, thanks to a donation from Episcopal Housing Corporation, we can cover half the cost of getting an ID AND a birth certificate.

To get started, come to the Guardian Angel food pantry on Wednesday mornings between 9 and 9:45 am at Kromer Hall (335 W. 27th St.) and talk to Kezia Snipe or call her at 443-803-1952.
